Your guide to Welcome America celebrations

Party time. This is how Philadelphia will celebrate the nation's 238th birthday.

Get your flags out.

Philadelphia will celebrate Independence Day with a free concert, an impressive fireworks display and, of course, one huge hoagie.

The 2014 Wawa Welcome America festival, which stretches from Wednesday into Sunday, has scheduled events and activities across the city and beyond throughout the rest of the week.

Metro has compiled the best and most interesting celebrations in this edition, for your convenience.

Just make sure to remember your sunscreen, American spirit and antacids.

It's a really big hoagie.

Visit Metro.us for a full list of Welcome America events.

Wednesday

Check out these events:

- Go 4th & Learn About History, 10 a.m. at National Constitution Center; free museum admission all day with live performances and an exhibition on the history of the hoagie
- PHL Photo Exhibit: Civil Rights in Philadelphia: 50th Anniversary of the Civil Rights Act of 1964; 10 a.m. at the airport
- Wawa Hoagie Day, noon at Independence Mall; Wawa salutes the military, firefighters and police officers with 5 tons' worth of free hoagies.
- Philly @ the Movies: "Rocky," 9 p.m. at the Art Museum
- For an interview with concert performer Aloe Blacc, see page 17. For more events, visit Metro.us or see Thursday's paper.

SEPTA schedule

- SEPTA will run a Sunday schedule with extra late-night service on July 4.
- Overnight subway services: Trains will run every 20 minutes until 5 a.m. all weekend.
- Market-Frankford: 4:30 p.m. to 1:15 a.m., 10 more trains running every five to seven minutes

- RR: 11:30 p.m. to 12:45 a.m., 17 trains from Suburban Station making all local stops

Outlook is good

Storms to pass

Wednesday will be hot and sticky with a heat index of 100, said Jim Bunker with the NWS in Mount Holly. Thunderstorms will start Wednesday, but it won't impact fireworks shows on Friday night, he said.

Temperatures will be in the 80s on Thursday and Friday and on the weekend. "Once we get past this front, things should be pretty good," Bunker said.

Wawa to build 5-ton hoagie

The 5-ton Wawa hoagie, with more than 10,000 pounds of ingredients will be served outside the Independence Visitor Center at noon today.

Wawa's Lori Bruce said 150 workers will build the sandwich in about four hours.

Wawa will also honor military as well as local fire and police. "It's not only the celebration of a sandwich," Bruce said, "It also recognizes those who serve the community."

Joe Biden to crash festivities

Vice President Joe Biden announced Tuesday he will participate in the kickoff to the Independence Day celebrations.

Biden will speak at the Celebration of Freedom Ceremony in front of Independence Hall on Friday at 10 a.m.

The event pays tribute to United States history with patriotic music, speeches and a reading of excerpts from the Declaration of Independence.

Biden, a Scranton native, is expected to recognize the 50th anniversary of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the 60th anniversary of the Brown v. Board Supreme Court decision.

Fans feel the unity despite Team USA loss

In harmony. Soccer fans both casual and diehard were excited to make it this far.

Red, white and blue could be seen everywhere among the cheering soccer fans at Fado Irish Pub on Tuesday as they watched Team USA drop a heartbreaker to Belgium 2-1.

American Outlaws members Devin Bell, 26, and Brandon Green, 25, were decked out in American flag colors for the occasion. Bell noted how the World Cup has provided a bigger outlet for both sports fans and non-sports fans.

"This World Cup has made even the most casual person — who doesn't watch baseball, who doesn't watch American football — become a soccer fan," Bell said. "And it's very exciting. It's a great sight to see."

Many talked about unity felt throughout the entire campaign.

"We're all sporting one thing, USA — not Philly — USA," said Dylan MacLaughlin, 22.

A lifelong soccer fan, Stuart Campbell, 22, said win or lose, it's great for the city and country.

"A scene like this is a victory for soccer in the United States," he said.

Port Richmond

A woman who operates a home daycare left five children locked inside an SUV on Tuesday morning in a Port Richmond ShopRite parking lot while she shopped, police said.

The children — three boys (aged 6 months, 6 and 8) and two girls (aged 1, 9) — were left inside the running SUV with the air conditioning blowing.

They had been in the temporary care of Karin Thompson, 39, who has been charged with five counts of reckless endangerment.

All five children were treated at St. Christopher's and released to their parents. METRO

Police seek alleged 'dangerous' NE Philadelphia rapist

Wanted. PPD is seeking an "armed and dangerous" man who allegedly raped his ex-wife.

Albert DiPrimeo, 57, was wanted by police as of Tuesday evening for reportedly attempting to rape his ex-wife inside his home on the 7900 block of Marsden Street in Holmesburg on Monday morning.

The victim was reportedly staying over at DiPrimeo's house, but things turned ugly when he allegedly held a gun to her head and reportedly ordered her to have sex with him before sexually assaulting her.

The victim was able to escape to a neighbor's house and call 911.

SWAT and police went to DiPrimeo's house believing he was still inside, but he had fled the home. He has not been seen since.

DiPrimeo, who sports several tattoos, as seen in his profile pictures on Facebook, is considered armed and dangerous. Anyone who sees him is being asked to call 911.

The suspect

Police described him as 5-feet-8-inches tall and 230 pounds with black hair. He's believed to be driving a 2001 gray Honda Accord, tag number JNH-4642.

$$$. Corbett delays budget, waiting on pension overhaul

As of press time Tuesday evening, state lawmakers were still working to prepare reforms to the state's pension system to coax Gov. Tom Corbett to sign the 2014-15 budget.

The House and State Senate in Harrisburg passed a $29.1 billion budget Monday. But after midnight, Gov. Corbett left the state capitol without signing the budget, sending it back to lawmakers.

Corbett sought cutbacks to stave off the state's impending $50 billion pension debt. Corbett's plan was estimated to save $10 billion over 30 years.

Corbett dismissed a Senate-backed reform that would shift lawmakers' retirement accounts to 401(k)s and was estimated to save about $700 million in 10 years. Corbett's office said the budget delay would not impact state services. SAM NEWHOUSE

Budget issues

The School Reform Commission passed a $2.8B budget, but $93M in funds is uncertain pending a final state budget.

- State Sen. Anthony Hardy Williams led the push to pass a $2 cigarette tax that could bring schools more than $80M, but that plan has stalled.

Obama tells Cabinet to find areas open to executive action

President Barack Obama told his Cabinet on Tuesday to look for areas where he might be able to govern by executive action, given gridlock in Congress that is hampering his agenda.

In a White House meeting, Obama brought together the top officials in his government a day after conceding a deadlocked Congress will prompt him to act on his own authority where he can on an immigration overhaul.

Obama said he wants to work with Congress where possible, "but if Congress is unable to do it," then, he said, his Cabinet officials and agency heads should look for areas where executive actions can "show some real progress."

"The people who sent us here ... just don't feel as if anybody is fighting for them or working for them," Obama said. "We're not always going to be able to get things through Congress. ... We ... can make sure that the folks back home know we are pushing their agenda and that we're working hard on their behalf." REUTERS

Israel mourns teenagers, strikes Hamas in Gaza

Tens of thousands of mourners joined in an outpouring of national grief on Tuesday at the burial of three Israeli teenagers whose kidnapping and killing Israel blamed on the Palestinian Islamist group Hamas.

In his eulogy at the cemetery in the center of the country, President Shimon Peres, a usually dovish elder statesman, echoed official vows to punish Hamas.

Fight for allies. Japan takes historic step from post-war pacifism

Japan took a historic step away from its post-war pacifism on Tuesday by ending a ban that has kept the military from fighting abroad since 1945, a victory for Prime Minister Shinzo Abe but a move that has riled China and worries many Japanese voters.

The change, the most dramatic shift in policy since Japan set up its post-war armed forces 60 years ago, will widen Japan's military options by ending the ban on exercising "collective self-defense," or aiding a friendly country under attack.

Abe's cabinet adopted a resolution outlining the shift, which also relaxes limits on activities in U.N.-led peace-keeping operations and "grey zone" incidents short of full-scale war, Defense Minister Itsunori Onodera told reporters.

Long constrained by the post-war constitution, Japan's armed forces will become more aligned with the militaries of other advanced nations in terms of its options. However, the government will be wary of putting boots on the ground in multilateral operations such as the 2003 U.S.-led Iraq war. REUTERS

OMG! Hot-air balloon flights to see the world's curves in 2016

World View Voyagers will be transported to the edge of space via a luxuriously styled pressurized space capsule. / WORLD VIEW ENTERPRISES

Visit us online at Metro.us/omg for more interviews.

World View Enterprises, a space tourism company in Arizona, will send its clients up into the sky inside a pressurized capsule powered by a high-altitude hot-air balloon. For a cool $75,000, paying customers will reach a height of 18.6 miles above the Earth's surface, high enough to peek through the window and gaze at the planet's curvature. Kaley Briesmaster of World View Enterprises spoke to Metro about the thrill of seeing Earth's curves.

What's your flight program all about?

It will be a human spaceflight experience unlike any other suborbital opportunity being offered today. You will ride in a space-qualified, luxury-appointed spacecraft, large enough to walk around in. You will rise into the atmosphere, slowly and gently, not on a roaring rocket. You will watch every tree, every building and even the mountains become smaller and smaller. Once you reach 30 kilometers, you will float along the edge of space for two hours, taking in the breathtaking views of our home planet.

How long are you floating up there?

It's five hours from launch to landing. Voyagers will float along the edge of space for more than two hours.

How many tests will be necessary before this mission takes off?

Component and subscale testing is well underway. Ultimately the progress and success of the production and flight testing phases will drive the schedule. WANISE MARTINEZ, METRO WORLD NEWS

Talking point

Badu crashes gossip news

Apparently, mentioning Shia LaBeouf's name is like a dog whistle for other crazy celebrities. While reporting live on LaBeouf's latest public meltdown, Pix 11 reporter Mario Diaz was accosted by 1990s neo-soul sensation and apparent hat enthusiast Erykah Badu. She wandered by the camera with a wide-eyed grin, made a gesture, opened her coat to show off her (chic, but thankfully not revealing) outfit and tried to kiss Diaz. Diaz, who obviously doesn't know a 1990s neo-soul sensation when he sees one, shoved her out of frame.

Adam Levine does not get paid to act

Adam Levine is an attractive guy. In fact, being attractive may be the thing he's best at, including being the frontman of Maroon 5. So he should be fine monetizing that attractiveness on the silver screen, right? Not so! Levine says he wants to take it slow as he learns his craft — that's why he took on his role in "Begin Again," opposite Keira Knightley, more or less as an unpaid intern.

"I did this movie for no money. I'm very lucky that I'm in that position," he tells USA Today. "I want to treat [acting] completely differently, because I have the very fortunate luxury of not having to think of this in terms of money."

Between Maroon 5 and "The Voice," Levine will probably never have to think of anything in terms of money again. But he is a man of simpler pleasures: His favorite thing about being a rock star is apparently restaurants.

"I can get a reservation at any restaurant in town at any town," he says with awe. "Anyone who doesn't tell you that that's not the best part about being famous is crazy."

Will Adam Levine star in my Web series if I take him to dinner? I've gotta make some reservations!

"Community" gets another chance. / NBC

Yahoo rescues 'Community'

After five rocky seasons, buffeted by poor ratings, behind-the-scenes drama and the firing and rehiring of creator Dan Harmon, "Community" was finally axed by NBC this spring. Luckily, it's 2014, when losing a spot on a network just means it's time to go shopping for a shiny new online platform. "Community" found one in Yahoo, which has picked up a sixth 13-episode season of the beloved weirdo comedy.

Yahoo announced the news via their Tumblr earlier this week, because the company also owns Tumblr, because, like the weird rich kid in middle school, Yahoo is trying to become popular by buying up everything that's cool. Like the weird rich kid, it'll probably work.

Dan Harmon, who will return as executive producer, expressed his joy and gratitude the only way he knows: with a swipe at NBC.

"I am very pleased that 'Community' will be returning for its predestined sixth season on Yahoo," said Harmon. "I look forward to bringing our beloved NBC sitcom to a larger audience by moving it online. I vow to dominate our new competition. Rest easy, 'Big Bang Theory.' Look out, 'Bang Bus'!"

If "Community"'s history is any indication, "Bang Bus" will probably trounce them in the ratings.

4 Reasons 'Tammy' is better than it looks

Surprise! The new Melissa McCarthy vehicle has terrible ads. They're selling a lamer movie.

Moments like this are thankfully rare in "Tammy." / WARNER BROS. PICTURES

Review

'Tammy'

Director: Ben Falcone

Stars: Melissa McCarthy, Susan Sarandon

Rating: R

1 Melissa McCarthy is still funny. The key to McCarthy's gifts isn't that she's willing to make an ass out of herself. It's that her characters tend to have a brash, arrogant confidence in traits few would find admirable. Her breakthrough "Bridesmaids" character is downright hallucinatory in her eccentricities. "Tammy"'s Tammy is more straightforward: She's a bad luck magnet, but she always soldiers on, even when, as in the film's opening, she's fired and learns she's been cheated on — after hitting a deer with her car. She doesn't, like the similarly beset-upon Jenny Slate in "Obvious Child," proceed to get knocked up and schedule an abortion on Valentine's Day. Instead she runs off on a road trip with her grandma (Susan Sarandon).

2 It gives her a good sidekick. So far McCarthy has played either second fiddle or co-lead. Here, she's the centerpiece, and next to her is Susan Sarandon, who's given gray hair but no other visible aging makeup to pass as her alkie, loose cannon grandmother. (In real life, Sarandon only has 24 years on the woman playing her grand-daughter.) Perhaps because she's still fairly young, Sarandon isn't doing Alan Arkin in "Little Miss Sunshine." She's alert, flirty and still enough of a fox that it's not far-fetched when she gets some tail. Sarandon doesn't tend to have fun in movies, yet her devil-may-care turn here gives the film an alert, unpredictable energy.

3 It has a strange, unwieldy tone. Actually, most of it is pretty much what you'd expect, given that the producers are Adam McKay and Will Ferrell. It's a comedy that goes primarily for laughs that are primarily about McCarthy trying to play it cool even as she's, say, driving with her head out the window due to a busted windshield. There's a terrific slow-burn fast food joint robbery that gets funnier the more it drags things out; scenes like this help atone for a few bits where McCarthy just makes faces. It has a superficially "indie" sheen, which is to say it's a little rough around the edges, especially considering it's the probable box office winner of July 4's new releases. (Two scenes depicting accidents are unfollowable.) Every now and then it goes to weirder, even sadder places. Tammy actually does sometimes feel bad about herself and breaks down a time or two. Even when things get emotional, it always quickly retreats to safer (which is to say comedic) places. But the sporadic almost-seriousness gives "Tammy" a bizarre tone that makes it more likeable than had it actually been committed to being serious.

It must be love

It takes McCarthy almost seriously as a romantic lead

4 This is a film directed by Ben Falcone, who in real life is married to McCarthy, and the two wrote the script together. It understands that perhaps audiences don't want to think of McCarthy as having a sex life. It even makes jokes to the effect that she thinks she has a pull over men. And yet she does get a hesitant romance with no less than Mark Duplass, playing an overly mild-mannered, handsome shlub first coerced into spending time with her, then finding himself remarking on her beauty — an act done neither as a joke nor as a comment on men finding women of larger sizes sexy. And so in her very first mostly solo vehicle, McCarthy gets to make out with a good-looking actor, and it's portrayed as completely and casually normal. That might be the most refreshing thing at the movies all summer.

'Deliver Us from Evil'

Edgar Ramirez is a chain-smoking hunk o' priest who helps Eric Bana in "Deliver Us from Evil." / ANDREW SCHWARTZ

Horror films that claim to be based on fact are just begging to be called on their bull. "Inspired" by events that were probably more boring in real life, this horror has a Bronx cop (Eric Bana) happening upon possible possessions, wreaking lot of flashing lights and levitating. But it's silly in even less productive ways. Case in point is Joel McHale, distractingly miscast as a tough, tattooed, wisecracking cop with a backward baseball cap and an Alice in Chains tee.

'Earth to Echo'

Though sold as a "found footage" film, "Earth to Echo" has deeper roots in another genre: the '80s-style boys adventure. Inspired by the likes of "The Goonies," it follows kids as they try to help an adorable alien. It's shy a couple narrative elements, but it's not cynical. In fact, it's touchingly sincere about recreating a certain era of moviemaking, and melancholic about the kids' coming teenage years. MATT PRIGGE

Seen on the scene

- When Broadway/film star Lainie Kazan (you know her from "My Big Fat Greek Wedding") played New Hope's Razz Room, she was visited by a lookalike drag queen flash mob as well as FMQB publisher/philanthropist Kal Rudman.

- When musicians Jeffrey Gaines and The Hooters' Rob Hyman hit Tin Angel atop Serrano to see rockabilly icon Robert Gordon, they were the last people to order from Serrano's menu. The Old City nosh spot is changing its name, food and look. "It's been the great Serrano for 29 years, but it's time we completely rebrand," says owner Donal McCoy. The bar will stay open through the summer while the restaurant is renovated, and a rotation of food truck chefs will host pop-ups there. The menu is getting a makeover too, in tandem with a well-known Philly food chieftain whose partnership McCoy cannot reveal yet.

SHAKE-UPS ON THE FOOD SCENE

Cavanaugh's Headhouse Square location just opened its dark-wooded Whiskey Bar and introduced a passport program. "This 200-plus-bottle Whiskey Bar is the culmination of years of first-hand research," says co-owner Patrick Pawliczek of the "man cave"-type space. The passport, which gets you special tastings, dinners and discounts, touches on the best of the Irish/English-branded bar's items, including the house's Angel's Envy Cavanaugh's Blend bourbon.

Around the corner, there's drama at the Legendary Dobbs rock 'n' roll club on South Street. Rumor has it the property owner is at odds with the booker, one of the club's longtime operational partners — to the point of possibly ousting him.

The Weekly Yelp. Best barbecue

Happy Birthday, America! This year, we're celebrating our nation's big day with some good old fashioned barbecue. So grab a few napkins and leave the white pants at home. Things are about to get messy.

Everything you could ever want in the world of BBQ. Great portion sizes, great atmosphere and great prices. Love the ribs, pulled pork and every side available — OMG and the cornbread. CARLA H.

Dickey's Barbecue Pit

Deke's is delicious. Excellent vinegar-based pulled pork barbecue (I got the Smokin' Hog sandwich); the french fries were thick and delicious as well. Three different sauces were also at the table for the eater's pleasure. GIA M.

"It's important to remember, recognize and honor the people who fought for our freedoms in the past ... so that we're respectful of the privileges we have today," says Blacc, discussing his video for "The Man," which pays tribute to Civil Rights icons Marvin Gaye, the Selma marchers and Muhammad Ali. / FILMMAGIC

Rising star. "Wake Me Up" singer talks about Panama and big-name collaborations.

For many of us, the Fourth of July means barbecues, block parties and fireworks.

But for Aloe Blacc, who is featured in the annual Philly 4th of July Jam on the Parkway starring The Roots, the barbecues and fireworks of his youth in Southern California meant a little more for him and his family.

"My parents and my family are from Panama," Blacc says. "[The Fourth of July] was a special [day] because they were celebrating being American and having that experience of coming to this country to make a better life."

Blacc, the voice of Avicii's 2013 heavy rotation hit "Wake Me Up," says his parents didn't have a Civil Rights movement in Panama: "Black folks had trouble getting jobs. ... There was a lot of discrimination all throughout Central and South America. ... They came to the U.S. where they're obviously socially forward and getting with the times and being respectful to humanity."

It's been a big 12 months for Blacc, from the exposure of "Wake Me Up" to his current hit, "The Man."

"'Wake Me Up' was a huge opportunity to introduce my voice and my songwriting to a lot of people, and it was a great way to follow up with that," says Blacc.

He first emerged as a rapper and scored a minor hit with 2010's "I Need a Dollar," which was used as the theme song for HBO's "How to Make It in America." And now he's playing with The Roots backing him. Looks like he has made it in America.

Four tips for the Fourth. Big Ang throws a bash worthy of a 'Mob'

Like every red-blooded American, "Mob Wives" star Big Ang celebrates the birth of our reality TV-obsessed nation with Jell-O shots, poolside jewelry and a plug for her own product. Here are her tips.

1 Avoid lame parties. "Only go to the fun parties — um, hello?! Like the big bashes at my house. Every party I throw is great. Wanna come?"

2 Embrace the theme. "You have to have your Fourth of July theme going on like crazy. ... I like to put on my red bikini and my jewelry and then I'm ready to par-tay, baby!"

3 Smother it in butter. "Your party definitely has to have clams on the barbecue, steamed with the buttah. ... [and] all the liquor, Patron shots and Jell-O shots. And then you can go to the beach and have a cabana party."

4 Do the hustle. "Make sure your DJ plays disco only, like you're in a time warp. It's more fun! None of that new stuff. And finish the night with some sangria made with Big Ang Wines." CHRIS CARPENTER

The Jam will be broadcast live on VH1 and Palladia, and it is — not hyperbolically — being billed as the largest free concert in America.

The lineup includes The Roots, now the house band for "The Tonight Show," Nicki Minaj, Jennifer Hudson, Ed Sheeran and Ariana Grande, who until this summer you may have known as the star of Nickelodeon's "Sam & Cat" but is making a different name for herself with "Problems," her collaboration with Iggy Azalea.

Cleaning up Fishtown

Trash. The neighborhood is discouraging litter with its Feed the Fish project.

There's a trend in community organizations to implement the "fun theory," which holds that good habits can be formed when they're fun to do. One community in Sweden, for example, used that idea and installed a piano staircase by an escalator to promote walking.

Members of the Fishtown Neighbors Association Beautification Committee went with fish.

Feed the Fish is designed to discourage littering in the neighborhood. More than 20 trash cans will be affixed with a fiberglass fish head with a gaping mouth waiting to be fed garbage. The association issued a call to artists to submit designs.

"I think that this project definitely puts the fun element into a cleanup effort," says Angela McQuillan, participating artist, Fishtown resident and curator of the Esther Klein Gallery at the University City Science Center. "Regular trash cans are pretty boring. It's way more fun to throw your trash into a giant fish mouth."

She decided to dial up the fun factor by giving life to her very own trash-gobbling fish. "One of the things I find most interesting about fish is their vibrant colorations and patterns. There are some crazy-looking fish species out there!" McQuillan says. "For this design I was thinking about creating my own species of fish: pupura maculatam pisces faecibus, more commonly known as the Purple Spotted Garbage Fish. This fish is specifically known for its ability to eat large quantities of trash."

Right now the fiberglass heads are still in the manufacturing stage. "Our goal is to unveil them in the fall," says Kristie Landry, chair of the Beautification Committee. "We also want to have a special 'meet the artist and sponsor' ceremony," she adds, to help bring the community together to make cleanup more fun.

Neighborhood kids going green

Schools are getting into the act, too, by sponsoring trash cans. "With this project, we are really trying to address the issue and to start young," says Kristie Landry of the Fishtown Neighbors Association Beautification Committee.

Several schools are on board, signing up to empty the bins and provide new bags.

"So far the school interest has been great. [The project] aligns to campaigns they already have in the works around keeping things clean and green," Landry says.

Have a safe home as well as a safe trip

Advice. Before you hit the road, make sure your home base is secure.

You packed the car, overfed the fish, watered the plants, set your out-of-office message, rounded up the kids and filled up the gas tank. At the risk of adding more steps to your pre-vacation checklist, we regret to inform you that merely locking the door might not cut it when it comes to home security. (You did remember to lock the door, right?)

We checked in with Beth Dodson — co-founder of home-management software system HomeZada — for tips on keeping your home safe while you're napping on the beach.

MONICA WEYMOUTH
@MetroPhilly
letters@metro.us

Finished loading the car? Time to double-check your home security.
PIXLAND

One more tip

Move the spare key already

"Stop leaving your key under the planter! Just stop," says Dodson. "I can't tell you how many people do this. You're inviting people in!" For the record, yes: The welcome mat and mailbox are even worse options.

1 Test your security system

Unless you're particularly forgetful, it's likely you haven't actually set off your alarm in a while. "Call the company and tell them you're running a test," advises Dodson. "You want to make sure your home-security system works before you're on your way out." And as for the pass code, don't use your address — it's easy for your family to remember, but also easy for uninvited guests to figure out.

2 Record valuables

These days, it's easy to fit thousands of dollars worth of electronics in a backpack. While HomeZada offers platforms to account for your valuables, even a quick cell phone video tour of your home can be helpful if you have to make an insurance claim. "Most people can't remember the details of what they had," says Dodson.

3 Think before you post

There are a lot of creeps looking at your social media profiles — and not all of them are harmless high-school classmates. Posting pictures of your entire family across the country is an invitation to would-be burglars, warns Dodson. "If you really must post to Facebook, wait until you're on your way home — or better yet, after you're home," she says.

Quick tips

No plans for a pricey security system? Here are five quick, cheap steps you can take to make your empty home more secure and less inviting to burglars.

- Put your mail on hold (well-meaning neighbors might forget to collect it).
- Mow the lawn right before leaving.
- Have a pup? Put up a "beware of dog" sign.
- Install motion-detector lights.
- Inform neighbors (especially nosy ones) of your travel plans and ask them to keep an eye out.

Fourth of July beauty

Your weather app is projecting high temps and humidity for July 4, but you still want to look cute while you celebrate, right? These products will not only keep you looking like you've never sweat a day in your life or heard of the word "frizz," they'll make you look festive without being mistaken for a firework. EMILY LAURENCE

Sunscreen

Normally, you'd probably be spending this Friday trapped at work, bearing too-cold air conditioning and terrible fluorescent lighting. Having the day off to barbecue and drink all day is part of what makes this holiday so great. But if you want to avoid looking as red as an American Flag, you better double-up on the sunscreen. We love Alba Botanica Very Emollient Sunscreen Sport Mineral SPF 45 because it's water-resistant up to 80 minutes.

$11.49, WHOLE FOODS

Bronzer

Finding a concealer or bronzer that won't sweat off your face or cause pimples may seem like an impossible feat, but lo and behold, By Terry Tea to Tan Watercolor Bronzer does the trick. It contains black and red tea extracts, which soothes skin while blending, creating a glow that can last all day.

$58, B-GLOWING.COM

Eyes

Give your eyes a hint of star-spangled blue with a sapphire-colored eye pencil; it's more subtle than blue eye shadow but still striking. A dark blue makes blue eyes look even bluer and brown eyes really pop. Our pick is glo minerals' Jeweled Eye Pencil in Cobalt because it works for day or night.

$18, GLOPROFESSIONAL.COM

Nails

Your nails are the perfect place to go all out with your red, white and blue. Pinterest has tons of awesome Fourth of July nail art ideas, but if just painting your nails without getting nail polish all over your fingers is hard enough for you, go for Formula X's Liberty polish. The red, white and blue confetti top coat will add a patriotic pop that will make all your friends jealous.

$12.30, SEPHORA

Hair

Chances are, your Fourth of July will be hot and humid. To keep your hair from frizzing into a pouf, spray Bumble and Bumble Thickening Dryspun Finish all over your hair before heading out. If you're putting your hair up, secure your style with a red or blue hair elastic; try one of these Mia Beauty Tony Ties.

$16, SEPHORA

$5-$7, MIABEAUTY.COM

Fragrance

If you haven't switched to a new summer fragrance yet, it's time. Jean Paul Gaultier's Classique smells like a vacation in a bottle: The notes of orange blossom, jasmine, lily and vanilla form an exotic mix that's more lively than lazy.

$70, MACY'S

Lips

Even if you usually shy away from a red pucker, red lipstick is a July Fourth must. For a lipstick that won't fade or rub off, try Susan Posnick's Coloressentials in Paris. The texture isn't too shiny or too matte.

Religious exemption takes a human toll

Contraception. Doctor says Hobby Lobby case amounts to a "tax on women and families."

Arguments in the case were heard in March; the Supreme Court made its ruling Monday. / GETTY IMAGES

The political and legal fallout of the Supreme Court's decision to allow for-profit companies to exempt birth control in their employee health coverage will be measured in the coming years.

But for the employees of Hobby Lobby, and about 50 other companies that have filed for similar religious exemptions, it amounts to a "tax on women and families," said Dr. Susan Rubin, assistant professor of family and social medicine at Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

The biggest worry, says Rubin, a practicing family physician at Montefiore Medical Center, is the impact on families.

"This additional cost burden, I fear, is going to result in additional unintended pregnancies," she said.

Birth control is not cheap, from the doctor visits required to prescribe them to the drugs themselves. Women still make less than their male counterparts in most industries, and this additional cost burden is being borne by the women least likely able to afford it.

"These people are [probably] not making much more than minimum wage, and it's a lot of additional cost if you're making the average salary for retail employees," Rubin said.

Women, and men whose partners are covered under their insurance policies, will now essentially have to pay twice to get medication that is used near universally. "Families want to use contraception — 99 percent of heterosexually active females have used contraception and may stop using it for a number of reasons, one of them being cost."

Moreover, many women have medical conditions that limit which methods of contraception they can use, or they risk developing complications.

Visit Metro.us for more about the issues raised by this ruling.

But without insurance coverage, those options may be priced out of their reach.

Choosing to continue an unplanned pregnancy is "not the way to have a family-friendly policy in this country." And if a woman chooses not to have a child, her option to have an abortion is restricted in many states, as abortion is becoming less and less accessible. "We're cutting abortion access and also contraception access," Rubin said. "So what's the end result?"

In addition to preventing pregnancy, birth control drugs have non-contraceptive benefits for women, including relief from painful periods, heavy bleeding, fybroids and clotting disorders. These drugs have a role in ensuring a healthy pregnancy, too.

"Many women with medical conditions may need to take medications that could potentially be dangerous during a pregnancy, and in order to have healthy pregnancies need to have them very well planned," Rubin said.

By limiting its scope to contraception coverage, this decision was neither business-friendly nor pro-religious freedom, since faith-based objections can be made to other medical procedures, such as blood transfusions and vaccines.

"It's shocking that this is going on in the U.S. in 2014," says Rubin.

Priced out of care

Here are the costs for some common contraception options, according to Planned Parenthood. Most methods also require a physician's visit. To find out which is right for you, consult your physician or visit www.plannedparenthood.org and take a short survey.

- Birth control pill: $15-$50 (monthly)
- Ortho Evra patch: $15-$80 (monthly)
- Depo-Provera shot: $35-$100 (3 months)
- Implant: $400-$800 (3 years)
- IUD: $500-$1,000 (up to 12 years)
- Morning-after pill (Plan B): $30-$65

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Business and personal relationships will be on shaky ground. Keep your distance from partners if you want to meet your deadlines.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. Pay close attention to money matters. You will uncover some valuable information by keeping a close watch on trends.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Keep your feelings hidden. Romantic woes will occur if you confess your attraction for someone else's partner. Make the effort to meet new people.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. You are highly regarded in the workplace, but don't become complacent. Keep on top of the latest developments.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Something that had you confused will become clear. You could meet your career goals if you make time to do things you enjoy.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Speak the truth, but be careful about who is listening. Letting your feelings be known to the wrong individual could work against you. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

US freedom is in strength

Re: 'Put down guns, pick up peace' (Metro, June 24) I disagree with the points the author brought up in her letter. Her advocacy for strict gun control and her statement about what our nation produces are totally wrong! The rights she advocates for in her letter are nowhere to be found in the Declaration of Independence or in the U.S. Constitution. The Second Amendment guaranteeing the right to bear arms totally supports our First Amendment rights, including the author's. The correct path to peace is through strength, and strength is what our nation needs to defend our cherished freedoms!

Child crisis isn't just at the border

Re: 'Obama seeks $2B from Congress to tackle child migration crisis' (Metro, June 30) If all these children from Central America are escaping drugs, violence and poverty by coming to America, then where do the children from Chicago escape the same problems, and who will help them? If this is a "humanitarian" crisis, then why isn't the U.N. asking the world to help us and send money to us for a change?

Belgium eliminates USA in extra time

World Cup. USA does the country proud in a valiant near-comeback in the Round of 16.

Clint Dempsey was painfully close to sending the match to penalty kicks Tuesday. / GETTY IMAGES

There was no shortage of drama Tuesday afternoon when Team USA finally hit the pitch in the Round of 16. There was rarely a drama-free moment during the final minutes of regulation and certainly not for all of extra time.

An incredible goal from Julian Green to answer two straight Belgian goals at the 107-minute mark wasn't enough to force penalties as the U.S. was ousted, 2-1.

Tim Howard made save after save through the contest to keep Team USA in the game, and with every diving effort from the American goalkeeper, viewers all over the world knew the United States would not back down.

"It's heartbreaking," Howard said on ESPN following the loss. "I don't think we could have given it more. We left it all out there."

The wheels appeared to come off at the start of extra time, when the Belgians struck twice in the first 15 minutes, with a Kevin De Bruyne goal and then one from Romelu Lukaku.

The Yanks struck back with a bevy of incredible opportunities, including a near miss by Clint Dempsey on a slick set piece on a free kick from 30 yards out.

History makers

Team USA goalie Tim Howard was historically good against Belgium and the American's offense was also record-setting.

- Howard saved a remarkable 16 shots, the most ever in a World Cup match.
- Julian Green's extra-time goal was the youngest ever scored by an American in a World Cup match (19 years old).
- Team USA was knocked out in the Round of 16 for the second straight Cup.

Messi to the rescue

Argentina knocks off Switzerland in extra time

It took until the 118th minute, but Lionel Messi finally shone through.

The three-time world player of the year made a beautiful run to the top of the box, dishing off a pass to Angel Di Maria who buried it in the back of the net to give Argentina a 1-0 win over a game Swiss underdog.

The assist was Messi's first of the tournament on top of four goals in the previous three games.

Switzerland's Blerim Dzemaili actually had a chance to tie it in the 119th minute, but his header hit the left post and he was unable to corral the rebound.

Nadal upset in round No. 4

For some reason, Rafael Nadal is not at his best at Wimbeldon. The No. 2-ranked player in the field for men's singles was upset by Nick Kyrgios, a 19-year-old Australian in four sets. The other top four seeds are still alive in the tournament's final eight: No. 1 Novak Djokovic, No. 3 Andy Murray and No. 4 Roger Federer.

Phillies pitching solid

Cliff Lee / GETTY IMAGES

Phils starters continue to play solid, Lee nears his return

The Phillies starting pitching rotation figures to get a boost when Cliff Lee returns, which should be just a few weeks away.

Cole Hamels has been as good as any pitcher in the game over the last month. The rest of the rotation should be decent at worst.

And then there's the resurgent bullpen, which has been very good since late May, thanks to the development of Jake Diekman, Justin DeFratus and Mario Hollands. Jonathan Papelbon has been dependable and Ken Giles looks like he belongs. But what does it matter if they can't score runs?

Revere is one of the few Phillies hitters, who is heating up as the dog days arrive.

"We have the talent to do it," Revere said. "We just got to get up there and do the job."

Confidence is good, but it can only do so much. It's time for the Phillies to win. ED CONDRAN

Nerlens Noel will finally suit up as a 76er this weekend. / GETTY IMAGES

Noel to make Sixers debut in Orlando

The Sixers begin their summer league on July 5 in Orlando, and the team's roster will be young. In fact, it is pretty much as young as a roster could possibly be.

Philadelphia has 14 players slated to suit up, most notably Nerlens Noel, and 12 of them are rookies. The other two, Hollis Thompson and Casper Ware have logged a single season in the NBA.

Noel will make his long anticipated debut in the Sixers summer opener against the Magic Saturday at 1 p.m.

It should be interesting to see Noel at full strength, wearing a Sixers jersey for the first time as an active player after sitting out all of last season after surgery.

Sixers fans will also get to see some of the team's newest additions get some game action (though Joel Embiid and Dario Saric will not be playing), with Jerami Grant and Pierre Jackson expected to play serious minutes.

Two familiar faces will also play for the Sixers, St. Joseph's Ronald Roberts Jr. and Delaware's Jamelle Hagins. Both of them are dark horses to make the team, which really lacks depth.

Flyers re-sign goalie

Flyers decide to bring back Emery

The Flyers tried as hard as they could to maneuver to acquire some new players during the NHL draft last weekend, but were unable to make much noise.

They did bring back a key member of the 2013-14 team in Ray Emery, who signed a one-yard deal for $1 million Tuesday.

Emery will be 32 when the season begins, and he played very well at times — though his 9-12-2 record will not reflect it.

He did have a 2.96 goals against average and went 1-2 in the playoffs against the Rangers filling in for injured starter Steve Mason.

The Flyers also signed another goalie, Rob Zepp (also 32), to play with the Lehigh Valley Phantoms.

Zepp has played in Germany for the last seven years and has a two-way contract worth $600,000. METRO

Phillies season at a crossroads

MLB. The Phillies are in danger of falling well out of contention as their 10-game road trip continues.

Charlie Manuel once said that he loves baseball because there is no masking your identity.

"This game is great because you are who are you are after 162 games," Manuel said. "You can't make no excuses. Your record is who you are."

The Phillies former manager was a sage at times when talking baseball in the dugout before the game.

Halfway through the 2014 season, the Phillies are who they are. They are ten games under .500, in last place in baseball's weakest division and eight-and-a-half-games behind the NL East leading Atlanta Braves, who completed a four-game sweep in Philadelphia for the first time in a half-century.

During a critical stretch in which Sandberg said "It's win now time," the Phillies are 2-8 during their last ten games. There is little consolation except maybe that the club is going on the road, where it is a mind-boggling 18-19.

Typically only good teams win on the road. Why can't the Phillies hit or win at home?

"I don't know," Ben Revere said. "That's a great question. I don't have an answer. All I can say is that we got to play better here."

The Phillies will have the chance to do that, but the odds are that when they come back the following weekend for a homestand against the Nationals, the club will be buried at bottom of the division and all of the talk leading up to the All-Star break is who the Phillies will be able to deal. Teams with the seventh worst record in baseball typically aren't buyers at the break.

"The Phillies have a lot of issues," a NL scout said. "They have problems, but it shouldn't be a shock. We saw those problems when they left spring training."

LEGAL NOTICES

STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA
COUNTY OF DILLON

South Carolina Department of Social Services,

Plaintiff, vs. Jahyda Spurill, James L. Johnson, Curtis Dyson, John Doe,

Defendant(s)

IN THE INTERESTS OF: Jamiyah YOB: 2006 Za'Naisiah YOB: 2007 Minor(s) Under the Age of 18.

IN THE FAMILY COURT OF THE FOURTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
DOCKET NO: 2014-DR-17 -259
SUMMONS AND NOTICE

[Termination of Parental Rights]

TO: JAHYDA SPURILL, JAMES L. JOHNSON CURTIS DYSON, JOHN DOE, JESSE S. CARTRETTE, JR., GAL ATTORNEY BRIAN MERCER, GAL COORDINATOR

YOU ARE HEREBY SUMMONED and required to answer the complaint for termination of your parental rights in and to the minor children in this action, the original of which has been filed in the Office of the Clerk of Court for DILLON County, 301 West Main Street, Dillon, South Carolina 29536 on the 17th day of June, 2014, a copy of which will be delivered to you upon request; and to serve a copy of your answer to the complaint upon the undersigned attorney for the plaintiff at 304 West Harrison Street, Dillon, South Carolina 29536 within thirty (30)days following the date of service upon you, exclusive of the day of such service and if you fail to answer the complaint within the time stated, the plaintiff will apply for judgment by default against the defendant for the relief demanded in the complaint.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that you have the right to be present and represented by an attorney. If you cannot afford an attorney, the court will appoint an attorney to represent you. It is your responsibility to contact the Clerk of Court's Office, 301 West Main Street, Dillon, South Carolina 29536 to apply for appointment of an attorney to represent you. (Take all of these papers with you if you apply). This is a NEW action. If you had an attorney appointed in a previous action, that attorney is not your attorney for this action, YOU MUST APPLY FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF AN ATTORNEY IMMEDIATELY. IF YOU DO NOT APPLY FOR AN ATTORNEY WITHIN THIRTY DAYS OF RECEIPT OF THE COMPLAINT, AN ATTORNEY WILL NOT BE APPOINTED FOR YOU. YOU ARE FURTHER NOTIFIED that: (1) the guardian ad litem (GAL) who is appointed by the court in this action to represent the best interests of the children will provide the family court with a written report that includes an evaluation and assessment of the issues brought before the court along with recommendations; (2) the GAL's written report will be available for review twenty-four (24) hours in advance of the hearing; (3) you may review the report at the GAL Program county office.
